Bring your models, photos and artifacts

We encourage members to bring in models, photos and artifacts for display at the gathering.

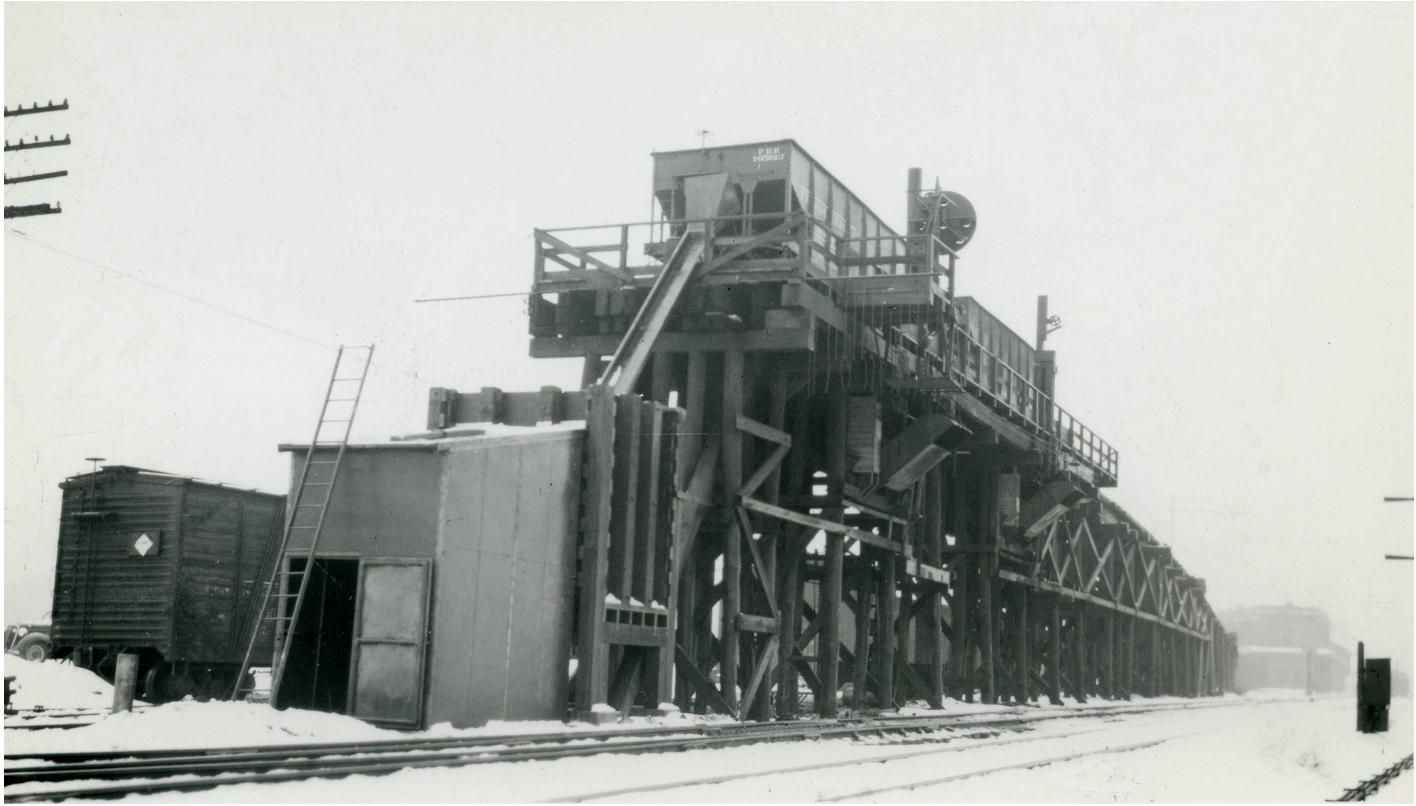

The Columbus Metropolitan Library recently scanned and posted nearly 40 images from a patron who loaned them images that her relative took while being a foreman for the PRR company for 40 years in Columbus. The photos date from the 1930s and 40s. If you would like to look at them use the link listed below.

There are two photos labeled “PRR Coal Dock”. Can any of you PRR experts out there confirm that this structure was in Columbus? And, does anyone know where it was located?

Photos from the Columbus Metropolitan Library Collection

Why would the PRR even have such a small capacity coal dock in Columbus?

It looks like there was a small bunker at ground level. Maybe this was for coaling up cabin cars
